New Students To Begin Year

The 1963-64 session of Mary Washington College officially begins today when some 530 freshmen and 30 transfer students arrive on campus to begin an intensive orientation program. 1,226 returning students representing the sophomore, junior, and senior classes are scheduled to arrive on Tuesday, September 17.

Although final figures will not be available until after the completion of registration on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 17 and 18, college officials anticipate that the total enrollment should reach at least 1,750. Last year, 1,753 completed registration for the 1962-63 session.

The new students, representing 299 high schools and 19 colleges in 31 states and two foreign countries, will receive an informal welcome Monday morning. Eighty-four percent of the new students are Virginians; 3 percent are from Pennsylvania and 3 percent are from New Jersey. The remaining students came from Maryland, New York, Florida, Massachusetts, D.C., Illinois, Colorado, Delaware, Ohio, Alabama, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Indiana, Louisiana, Michigan, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Texas and West Virginia.

New students were selected from approximately 1927 completed applications. The new freshmen include 23 valedictorians and 15 salutatorians. One hundred fifty seven freshmen have received scholarships from the college as compared to 160 last year.

There is only one set of twins in this year's freshman class as compared to two sets last year. They are Julia Ann and Judith Lee Pink from Norfolk.

Transfer students this year represent eleven Virginia and seven out-of-state colleges. They are from Southern Seminary and Junior colleges, Virginia Intermont, Clinch Valley College, Stratford College, Old Dominion College,

First Mixer Set

The first mixer for new students will take place in Ann Carter Lee Ballroom on September 21, from 8 to 11 p.m.

The mixer will be for freshmen and transfer students only. The band for the dance will be "The Saints."

Men have been invited from the University of Virginia, Randolph Macon, Medical College of Virginia, George Washington University, Georgetown University, the University of Richmond, and Hampden Sydney. Invitations were also sent to Quantico, Fort Belvoir, Fort Eustis, and naval and air force bases near Washington.

Campus Leaders Plan Year's Work

Approximately 100 student leaders returned to campus Wednesday, September 11, to begin the tenth annual pre-school leadership conference which had as its theme, "Inquiry: Prelude to Commitment."

The conference opened Wednesday evening with a general session in the reserve room of E. Lee Trinkle Library. Dr. Peter R. Coffin, associate professor of philosophy, was the keynote speaker for the meeting which was attended by the student participants and members of the College faculty and administrative staff.

Day-long sessions were held on Thursday and Friday, and the program concluded Saturday morning with an address by Chancellor Grellet C. Simpson. The students then continued preparations for greeting the more than 530 freshmen and transfer students who arrived Sunday, September 15, for an intensive orientation program.

Five general sessions in addition to the opening program were included in the two and one-half day conference. Participants covered a wide range of subjects affecting the academic and residential life of the college.

Chancellor Simpson Welcomes Students

To the New Students: If you don't know by now that we are all very happy to have you at the College, I am not sure that my letter will make the difference. Yet, by my letter being in the Butler which all students should read carefully, maybe you will be pleased to know once again that the faculty and staff, the students, and the townspeople of Fredericksburg really are happy to have you here.

Personally, I hope you have a wonderful year—that you will know all the time and place have a very warm and kind mean to warrant a D, E, or F grade on a piece of academic work; that you will always avoid any reason to be reprimanded or punished for your residential and social irresponsibility; that you will in the appropriate time and place have a wonderfully happy year; that you will soon learn who the Chancellor is and why he is called by that fancy title; that you will want to come to the lawn party at Bromington, September 22, to meet your teachers and see the bullet holes (in the house); and that throughout the year and always you will be fully aware that whenever occasion prompts you to do so, that you should feel free to drop by the office to see me. There are times when I will be busy; there are times when I will merely appear to be busy; there are times when I will pretend to be busier than I really am; but there is no time when you should ever hesitate to ask—and you may be surprised to discover how frequently the door is open to you.

GRELLET C. SIMPSON
Chancellor

Oh, how will I ever get all my things from the car to the dorm? This weary student, returning to MWC for the fall semester, makes a typical campus scene this week.

Plans for New Dorm Feature Unique Style

(From The Free Lance-Star)

A gently curving arc 250 feet long is a notable feature of the design for the next dormitory at Mary Washington.

Unique in campus architecture, the arc-shaped, four-story building will face Sunken Road on the hillside below Margaret Brent and Randolph Hall.

The design is planned to fit snugly in the sloping hillside at a setback parallel with the neighboring Marshall dormitory at the corner of Sunken Road and William Street.

It will house 180 students and feature a central lounge on the second floor leading through inner-campus side, plus twin staircases leading down to the first-floor foyer. There are also reading rooms for students designated on each floor at the ends of the curving corridors, an elevator and a driveway to the basement entrance.

The students' rooms in the proposed dorm will feature all built-in furniture. All beds, bookcases, and dressers will be built into the walls, as will be the closets with sliding doors. A large tack board will be located over each bed.

Each room will contain a sink built into a storage cupboard, with a mirror and make-up light above. There will be two community baths on each floor. But the half million dollar building is a year and a half away from opening. The tentative timetable looks to a call for bids in December and award of a contract in January, with completion a year later in mid-winter 1965.

Removal of Reservoir
Before that time a still more striking improvement may take place on campus—the removal of the city's reservoir from beside the twin drive to the college gates.

Long viewed as an eyesore on campus, the open reservoir is due to be replaced on another site with a covered, 4 million gallon tank on the far edge of the college golf course, under a city-college agreement now pending.

When that happens, the plans are to fill in and landscape the reservoir basin to a flat, open greenward between the Science Hall and Business dormitory, creating another quadrangle on campus.

There was some thought about making a sunken garden of it, said Chancellor Grellet C. Simpson, but it's not deep enough. Now he is concerned about the cross-campus view that will be exposed when the reservoir is gone. It may be, he said, that the tiny Framar annex on the southeast corner of the reservoir will have to be taken down, if it juts out into the quadrangle blocking the view across to Framar.

Change of By-Pass
Another project will be at the north rim of the campus where College Avenue gate posts face the U.S. 1 Bypass.

The 1963 senior class left a $1,000 gift for the college to add a low, brick ornamental wall there, somewhat like the curving wall at the corner of Sunken Road and William Street. But the design for it is still unsettled, partly because of landscaping uncertainties about a triangular, wooded mound on the other side of the gate posts across College Avenue. A 30-foot lot in the middle of the triangle isn't owned by the college.

Library Boasts Improvements

Accessibility, convenience, comfort, and quiet are the keywords in the improved E. Lee Trinkle Library, whose capacity has increased from 150,000 to 250,000 volumes.

As stressed by Dr. Carol H. Quenzel, librarian, the new policy of open stacks is one of the most important features of the "new" library.

Formerly, only upperclassmen, juniors and seniors, could enter the stacks. Underclassmen were required to ask student aides for books they wished to charge. Dr. Quenzel asks that everyone enter and leave the stacks through the door between the charging and receiving desks. This practice will act as a reminder to all not to take books from the library without checking them.

More areas for study are now provided in the library. Several of the stack rooms offer individual study desks, and the ground floor features a smoking room and a study room. The latter is not yet completed.

Typing Room Provided
On the same floor is a typing room with ten typing tables; five machines are provided and students may bring their own portables.

A new recording room, holding recreational and classical records, has eight listening positions as well as three individual rooms. Seminars and conferences may now be held in the library with Dr. Quenzel's permission in the new conference room.

The reference room contains the card catalogue with its 250 new trays.

The reserve room offers an area for quiet study, as the practice of self-service will be emphasized. Books may be taken from the shelves, used in the room, and returned to the shelving shelf. The desk for charging overnight books is outside the room so that the talking will not disturb others in the reserve room. Bound periodicals are now available to all on a self-service basis.

The new section of the building may also boast of air-conditioning by the year.

The United States National Student Association Congress is held annually on a mid-western university campus to give student leaders from the association a 387 various campus problems.

After the 11,000 attending delegates arrived, they were divided into 22 seminar groups to discuss various campus problems. During these two day seminars, Bonnie attended the group studying "Role of Student Government" and "The Role of the Student Body in the Legislative Process."

The legislative process of the National Student Congress takes up the most time because it is the most vital function. Here the delegates, having been selected to represent their student bodies, express their opinions on basic issues affecting students.

Each delegate is a member of a committee and sub-committee which drafts several resolutions to be presented to the entire body. At the Congress, Bonnie worked on the committee concerned with "Student Self-Government" and Judy helped develop bills involving

Faculty Adds 18 New Members

A recent graduate of MWC is among the eighteen new faculty members this year.

Miss Sarah Lacy Powell, who graduated with honors in 1962, has been named instructor in English. Last year Miss Powell did post graduate work at Colby College. She is the first MWC student to benefit from a $5,000 alumnae gift presented last year to Chancellor Simpson. Medora Powell, the appointee's sister, is a member of the rising senior class. The new instructor will replace Mrs. Barbara Pollard who has entered graduate school.

Miss Cornelia Surway will also join the staff of the English department. Miss Surway received her A.B. from Newcomb College and her M.A. from Bryn Mawr College. She is replacing Miss Virginia P. Lee, who has married and moved to New York.

One of several new members of the modern foreign language department, Mrs. Ana D. deAmador will teach Spanish and serve as head resident of the Spanish House. Born in Colombia, South America, Mrs. deAmador studied at Johns Hopkins University Medical School and at the University of Maryland, where she received her M.A. degree. She has taught at Cornell University and in the Maryland and Ohio public schools. Mrs. deAmador is taking the place of Mrs. Clifton McIninch (Miss Josefa Rivas), who is on leave of absence to work toward her Ph.D. at the University of Valencia, Spain.

Mr. Carvel deBussy, named assistant professor of modern foreign languages (French), received his A.B. and M.A. degrees at the University of Kansas. Previously, he was a candidate for a doctorate from Catholic University. He has taught at Catholic University and in the Maryland and Ohio public schools. Mr. deBussy is replacing Mrs. John H. Watts.

Editorials

Stop and Think

As a freshman, you come with bright hopes of conquering the world—your own practical world, be it that of science or literature or a small apartment somewhere. This enthusiasm is expected and it is good, but amidst all the promises and happy greetings of your first few days here, just stop a minute and ask yourself if you will return next year with the same enthusiasm and the same desire to conquer the world. High hopes and dreams take much hard work to attain. Often in the midst of all the hard work, which may sometimes seem like sheer drudgery, the enthusiasm that was first there becomes a little tarnished. It is so easy to return sophomore year a little jaded with all your freshman ideas and dreams seeming just too naive because you've learned that they can't all come true over night. After a year of studying the very basic elements of chemistry which, after all, you tell yourself, you've already learned in high school, when what you really want to do is branch out on your own and experiment right away, it is so easy to succumb to the luxury of a rather embittered sophistication which scorns every idea you brought to college as a freshman. The same is true in any field. The knocking down to learn the rudiments of your field before you go on to the more intricate and exciting facets and holding to your convictions in the face of others' scorn and conquering your own disbelief that you will ever accomplish anything is part of the hard work that you must do before you can ever hope to achieve your highest ideals.

When you look at the upperclassmen your enthusiasm, it is hard to think that they were once freshmen and felt as you do. But look further, for there are those who did work and are on the way to achieving the ideals that they brought to Mary Washington as freshmen.

Therefore, as a freshman hang on to your ideals, but realize that they will not be easy to attain and that you will have to do a lot of hard work before you will even be on your way to reaching them. Otherwise, next year, your ideas will seem naive and stupid and your freshman year will seem wasted.

To the Student Body:

How happy we are to have you on campus! As you become familiar with our way of life, we hope that you will grow to love Mary Washington as we do and we also hope that you will want to uphold our standards and traditions in every way.

Here at each one of our most cherished traditions is the Honor System. From each individual who agrees to live under its Code, it demands a strong sense of personal integrity. In return, the Honor System encourages mutual trust and faith in human nature. The interpretation, administration, and enforcement of the Honor System lie in the hands of the student body. This system belongs to us and its effectiveness will continue only as long as each of us gives it our wholehearted and unqualified support.

As the words of our Code state we must always be able to say: "I shall do all in my power at all times to create a spirit of honesty and trust for my own sake, and by upholding the Honor System myself and by helping others to do so." While this promise is not always easy to fulfill, the satisfaction and happiness that result are most rewarding. We have an Honor System of which we should be very proud. Let us guard it jealously.

In a few days I will be talking with you personally about the Honor System. In the meantime I urge you to reread the entire Honor Code found in your Handbook so that you will be better prepared for your Honor Code Training sessions that will begin this Tuesday. Please don't hesitate to talk with your Honor Counselor, with me or with any other member of the Honor Committee for we are eager to help you in any way we can.

Shakespeare once wrote: "This above all, to thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man." This is a good basis for an honor system, for honesty to yourself will determine your way of life.

To each of you I extend a sincere and heartfelt welcome. May your years here at Mary Washington be happy and fulfilling.

Sincerely,
ALICE ANDREWS
President, Honor Committee

To the Student Body:

I want to take this opportunity on behalf of the Student Government to extend to all of you both new and returning students the warmest, heartiest, and happiest welcome that I can possibly give. We have so much to look forward to this year, so much to learn, so much for which to work!

To you, the freshmen Student Government wishes you a year filled with the full awareness of all the vast opportunities opened to you at Mary Washington.

We vitally need your fresh approaches, inquiring minds, and active support. You, as freshmen, living together, represent a spirit of unity and force that can assure the success of Student Government. We need your understanding and interest and creativity in all the Student Government does. Sophomores, to you, living in every dorm on campus, your enthusiasm will be felt as an underlying current throughout the year.

And Student Government is counting on you in participation in every aspect. Juniors, your leaders in grid-iron, and arenas of purpose are essential for the accomplishment of the goals of Student Government. Seniors, yours is a year of hope, decision and sense of achievement. Student Government looks to you because of all your varied experience in all phases of college life here at MWC.

To freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors, our year ahead will be one of responsibility, inquiry and commitment, one of challenge and growth. Best, it will be filled with the realization of our goals and I hope, fulfillment of each of our dreams.

Good luck to all of you on behalf of Student Government. May it be the best year ever.

Sincerely yours,
BOONIE RAMSEY
President, SGA.

Statement of Policy

THE BULLET is the student newspaper of Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia. It is written and edited solely by students of the college. Any interested student has the staff; there is no major or cruise requirement for working on the newspaper.

As a college newspaper, THE BULLET's first purpose is the accurate coverage of campus events.

To the Student Body:

In addition, it should serve as a vehicle by which students may express their opinions. We, as the staff, intend to uphold and to maintain these standards; but we will endeavor to explore new areas and to provide a fresh slant. We will encourage also active student contribution and support.

In essence, we shall strive to make THE BULLET a clearing-house for Mary Washington news and views.

Student Facilities Have Alterations

Summer on the Mary Washington campus has been spent in maintenance and upkeep rather than in additions and alterations. There have been heavy few noticeable alterations on the campus itself over the summer, except the necessary removal of about twenty poplars around Marshall. The sycamore behind Bushnell is in poor condition, but campus authorities are trying to preserve it.

Alterations of in-cost to the students are those which were made in the college post office and in the Baptist Student Union over the summer.

The post office has been enlarged with the addition of over one thousand new boxes, allowing each student to have her own post office box instead of having a box mate, as has been done previously. In addition, the post office now has fluorescent lighting, new tables in the lobby, and it is air conditioned.

A large addition has been built behind and joining the present Baptist Student Union. The new addition is the first part of a three phase plan to enlarge the Center to include more space and facilities for members. The present addition will be used as a meeting room when plans for the entire Center are completed, which will be in 1970.

Plans are being completed with the city of Fredericksburg to move the center of the college water supply to the far corner of the golf course. This step will bring about the removal of the reservoir between Bushnell and the Science Building.

ATTENTION SENIORS!
Another reminder that your personal folder (instructions and forms) is ready for you to pick up on your arrival. The Placement Bureau has already scheduled a number of recruiters to visit our campus for interviews this year. It is necessary for you to have a completed personal folder when you come for interviews. If at all possible, The Placement Bureau needs your completed forms no later than October 31, 1963.

Seven MWC Students Fill Summer Posts

Seven Mary Washington College students were named to leadership posts for the 1963 summer session which began on campus Monday, June 17.

The interim appointees, who were named by officials of the regular campus organizations and approved by the office of the Dean of Students, served for the entire eight-week term. Students who filled the positions performed duties similar to their regular counterparts.

Enrollment for the 1963 summer session was 344, and the student body numbers 170 this fall.

SGA President
Student officials included Ronda Arline Ellis, who was Student Government President. Ronda was Student Education Association president for 1962-63, a member of YWCA and the International Relations Club. She has served as a handbook counselor and honor counselor, and was a member of House Council for two years.

Honor Council Representative was Judith Wilma Finger. Judith is a member of the Mary Washington Band and Pi Gamma Mu (national social science honorary society), was president of the Junior class, and has been a member of the Honor Council and the Student Government Association, was an honor counselor for the 1961-62 session, and a member of pre-school conference for two years.

President of Virginia dorm was Jane Lee Shewker. Jane has been a member of the honor basketball team, and Recreation Association lacrosse chairman.

Heads Willard
President of Willard dorm was Ruth Berrien Hill. She was a handbook counselor for the 1963-64 session, a member of Student Education Association, and was a member of House Presidents Training Committee in 1963.

YWCA President was Suzanne DuPuy Harman, who has served on various committees of the YWCA. Campus Safety Chairman was Agnes Erskine Bush. She will be a handbook counselor, vice-president of the Mary Washington Band, and secretary of Mu Phi Epsilon (national professional music society) for the 1963-64 session. She was a member of Westminster Fellowship, and was secretary of the Band for 1962-63.

Recreation Association president was Linda Jane Holbrook. Linda has been a member of YWCA, and has served as Recreation Association representative and as an honor counselor.

Fredericksburg Area Offers Eighteenth-Century Setting

Often in the flurry of modern collegians besieging the Mary Washington campus and the environs of Fredericksburg, the significance of this area in terms of historical importance is thrown into the background. Fredericksburg, America's most historic city, of few many sites of interest for persons with a flair for history.

Among these is the home of Mary Washington, 1200 Charles Street, which is full of authentic eighteenth-century furnishings. The home purchased by George Washington for his mother on September 18, 1772, was the place where she died August 25, 1786. The building features a large copy of a portrait of Mary Ball Washington as painted by Robert Edge Pine as well as several reconstructed areas of the original home.

Kennore, located at 1201 Washington Avenue, was the home and gardens of Colonel Fielding Lewis, an eighteenth-century advocate of national defense and his wife Betty Washington Lewis, the only sister of George Washington. Kennore originally situated on an 863 acre estate was erected in 1732 and serves as an outstanding example of mid-eighteenth century Tidewater Virginia architecture. The brick exterior presents a picture of restraint and dignity with well proportioned windows and chimneys while the interior is a gracious blending of the elegance and beauty which existed in that era of architecture.

The Hugh Mercer Apothecary Shop site of George Washington's office on his frequent visits to Fredericksburg provided the setting for the practice of medicine and pharmacy by Dr. Hugh Mercer. The shop remains the same as it was two centuries ago complete with gleaming bottles, ancient, show-cases faded prescriptions and yellowed ledgers. Dr. Mercer a Colonel in charge of the 3rd Virginia Regiment during the American Revolution was as a true historical shrine is indeed a tribute to his memory.

The Rising Sun Tavern built about 1760 by Charles Lee, youngest brother of George Washington was the favorite meeting place of the early patriots who gathered to protest against the tyranny of the mother country. The Tavern located at 1306 Caroline Street, was a social center for the colonial town as well as the Post Office and the Stage Coach stop. Furnishings and accessories of interest which reflect English and American origin include a desk owned by Thomas Jefferson chairs originally the property of James Monroe a large collection of pewter in the Tap Room and the original Tavern license dated 1775.

Stoner's Museum is a nineteenth century village general store stocked with unique items ranging from the cracker barrel through the peppers strung across the ceiling to the antique sleigh, machine and formerly modern conveniences. The Museum is housed in a Colonial building constructed in 1796 on the site of the old Male Academy. It was the home of Fredericksburg College for a number of years and now it lives as the old cross-roads store.

James Monroe Law Office
The Law Office of James Monroe features Louis XVI furniture which originally furnished the present White House. Here young James Monroe began the practice of law in 1786 and initiated a brilliant career of public service. A year of the Law Office Museum is for James Monroe Memorial Library which houses a comprehensive library on James Monroe, the Monroe Doctrine and this country's diplomatic relations with Latin America from his day to today. Included are hundreds of Monroe letters and from prominent men of his day, manuscripts and historical records.

The Echo of the Chimes

The echo of the chimes
Rings across the quiet campus
To welcome another college day.
And when the day is through
And evening shadows lengthen,
The bells their benediction say,
Alma Mater, may we value
Every moment that we spend
From the first few days of college
Until we reach the end.
Mary Washington, we pledge you
Our love and loyalty.
The chimes shall ring within our hearts
Through all eternity.

MWC Schedules 9 New Courses

Twelve new courses are being added in seven departments this fall.
A two-credit course, "Decorative Arts Seminar" is offered by the art department. The course will be taught by Dr. Pauline King.
Dr. William Barker will teach "Introductory Theoretical Chemistry."

Several new sophomore courses are being offered by the English department as substitutes for "Survey of American Literature" or "Survey of English Literature." "Shelby Fiction" will be taught by Dr. James Croushore and Dr. Sidney Mitchell.

"The Novel" will be taught by Mrs. Mitchell and Dr. D. H. Woodward. Dr. Woodward will also teach a new Shakespeare course.

Mr. D. E. Glover will teach "Poetry" and "English Literature of the Romantic Period." Dr. Roger Kevin and Dr. Norman Wainwright will teach "Tragedy."
The Geology department will offer a new course in "Mineralogy." The course will be taught by Dr. Samuel Bird.

A new German course is being offered by the modern foreign language department. "Goethe's Faust" will be taught by Dr. Zoltan Antony.

"Beginning Woodwind Instruments" is the new course offered by the music department.
Dr. J. R. Nazario will teach the new psychology course called "Physiological Psychology."

MW Senior Takes Post

Virginia Frances Lucas, a MWC senior, is one of four students elected in July to a two-year term on the Council of the National Conference of the Methodist Student Movement.

The elections were held during the annual meeting of the National Conference at Ohio Wesleyan. Ginny is president of the Virginia Methodist Student Movement and was recently named to a newly created post at MWC as senior assistant in Frances Willard Hall for the 1963-64 session. She was also one of 75 student and adult leaders attending the meeting of the National Conference of the Methodist Student Movement, which is the policy-making body of The Methodist church's national organization of college students.

A dean's list student, majoring in Spanish, Ginny is a member of Phi Sigma Iota (national honorary romance language fraternity); and Alpha Phi Sigma (national honorary scholastic fraternity). She has also served as president of the campus chapter of the Wesley Foundation (Methodist student group).

Prof Acts In Play

Dr. Benjamin Early, associate professor of English, participated in a Fredericksburg Little Theatre production of Rembrandt and Juliet. The play was written by Peter Ustinov.
In the comedy, Dr. Early played the part of a deaf and gentle archbishop. For his role, he had to wear an elaborate costume and speak with a cracked voice.
The play was presented September 2-7.

WE FIT SHOES THAT
KEEP YOUR FEET FIT

Shoes can squeeze, bind, rub, tug, pinch and pull. They can even change—ever so slowly—the natural, healthy shape of the foot. That's why we take pride in selling MORE than shoes.
We sell COMFORT AND CORRECT FIT—and at no extra cost!

BARETT SHOES

Welcome . . .

Many things have transpired since last year, the most important being to us, our presence in Park & Shop Shopping Center, near the College entrance. We join with our fellow merchants in saying, "Hi neighbors," and hope that you will enjoy shopping in our modern store, where every price is discounted and quality is guaranteed.
